Practical Plans.

We are sincerely desirous of settling with our creditors all questions which have grown out of the public debt of Virginia. But experience has taught us that the people must be a party to any settlement which is to be success ful and final. In 1871 as again in 1879 the Legislature fathered a bill which had originated certainly not with the people of Virginia, and the members flattered themselves that they had effected a settlement. But when the people were heard from at the ballotbox it was ascertained that the reckoning had been done without the host,

We do not desire that the present Legislature shall travel the same "dull round." We are ready and willing to make almost any concession which would be endorsed by the people at the ballot-box : but we are not willing to 1866, 1871, and 1879, when our law- of both parties. makers consulted the wrong advisers.

Some of our exchanges actually counsel the Legislature to appoint persons not residing in Virginia to agree upon a plan of settlement. Others of them propose to appoint five or six of the wealthiest men in the Commonwealth. their surplus and not out of their earn-

It is because we wish to be practical and to secure a settlement of the State debt once for all that we have spoken so freely against the policy of selecting as commissioners business-men, or men living without the Commonwealth, or even men outside of the Legislature. The "business-men" to whom our contemporaries allude are all of them debt upon any reasonably fair basis They would be willing to make so many concessions that their plan of settle ment would be rejected by the people. It is not necessary to consult those men. They are known to be ready to ratify almost any sort of plan.

For these reasons, we used a few days ago the following illustration :

"Whenever we see a paragraph suggesting that 'business-men' ought to have been selected [for the debt commission] we are reminded of what a clergyman then living in this city said years ago of that part of the burial-service of the Masonie fraternity which commends the departed brother to the tribunal of the unbiassed justice.' 'I tell you, my brethren,' said the clergyman, 'that if we get impar-tial justice we shall all be condemned.' We cannot but fear that if the debt of Vi.ginia were settled by business-men on business principles its total would astonish the tax-payers."

If that illustration was calculated to impress the true state of the case upon the reader, why not use it? Why mince matters when we desire the Legislature to make a settlement which the voters will ratify? Personally, we would be willing to go a long way in order to secure this desideratum. But we cannot encourage the bondholders to hope for too much.

The Petersburg Index-Appeal, al though a debt-payer and ready and willing to make the Riddle coupons receivable for taxes, repulsed our advances and commented upon the paragraph above quoted as follows:

"This is, indeed, a candid confession, and we hope it will do our Riddleberger contemporary's soul good. The intelligent reader will observe that the bond-holder, after all, is not such a grasping and cruel Shylock as he has been pic-

Our Petersburg contemporary will have to be "candid" also, if it intends to aid in the settlement of the State debt. The present is a time to be "candid." But if the Virginia commissioners are to be attacked by the debt-payers in case they make any concessions, what good result can follow their appointment? Would our Petersburg contemporary feel called upon to reproach us for inconsistency if we should express a willingness to ---? But enough. Let us settle the debt, and raise no side issues.

The average Stalwart paper no longer goes into ecstacies at the mere mention of BLAINE's name. Here is all the St. Louis Globe-Democrat has to say in announcing that the Plumed Knight would visit that city :

"Mr. Blaine will arrive in St. Louis "Mr. Blaine will arrive in St. Louis to-day. His long public career and his eminent place among the men who have made the history of this country during the past twenty-five years entitle him to a cordial welcome. If the duration of his contemplated stay did not prevent it, he would not be allowed to leave the city without such a demonstration as would convince him that he has a strong hold, muon the hearts of as a strong hold upon the hearts of

When we consider the space the Globe-Democrat has heretofore devoted to cultivating BLAINE booms, it must be confessed that the above-quoted peragraph has somewhat of the ring of tical obituary.

Just So .- In a recent interview with the Washington correspondent of the Alexantria Guastte Hon. J. D. Bhady, of Peta-burg, said that he had seen something in the newspapers to the effect that the solid vote of Virginia in the next National Republican Convention would be cast for Mr. SHERMAN, but that so far as he knew, Mr. BLAINE was the favorite of the Republicans of Virginia-certainly of the old-line Republicans.

The Bondholders. The cablegram which Governor Lan received yesterday from the bondhold-

ers furnishes additional proof that they are in carnest in their expressed desire to have done with law-suits, and coupons selling for one third of their face value, and heavy expenses in and out of court, and all the rest of the vexations which they have experienced during the last five years. The Rm-DIFFERGER bill was passed five years ago, and the bondholders have kept up a war upon Virginia ever since, and yet to-day their consols and their ten-forties and their coupons have a mere speculative value. No wonder the creditors propose to come over and see for themselves what manner of men these Virginians be. They would not spend money in negotiations, especially on this side of the Atlantic, if they were not in the humor of settling the debt upon reasonable terms-reason: able in their opinion, however these terms may seem to us.

We like, too, the anxiety of the creditors to have the Legislature take a recess so that it may have time enough to settle the debt question during this extra session. We would not have this matter turned over to the next Legislature. It would be a reproach to the Democrats to have to tell the creditors to await the meeting of the next Legislature. No, no. Let us either settle with the bondholders this spring, or else fault was not ours.

Judge Mallory's speech yesterday was a hopeful indication. The applause with which it was received by the Democrats of the House of Delegates was another good sign. The Democrats thus testified their singleness of purpose, and made known their sincere desire not only to have the debt settled. take any more such risks as we took in | but to have it settled to the satisfaction

A Republican Split.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

HAMPTON, VA., April 1, 1887.

The Republican County Convention was held here on yesterday, but not being able to agree on certain candidates, the Convention divided. One crowd nominated the following officers:

Commonwealth's Attorney, A. S. Segar; Clerk, John Booker; Sheriff, Andrew Williams (colored); Treasurer, Andrew Williams (colored); Treasurer, Jesse S. Jones; and Commissioner of the Revenue, R. M. Smith (colored).

The other crowd nominated the same officers for treasurer and commissioner of the revenue, and for Commonwealth's attorney F. S. Collier, for clerk E. G. Darden, and for sheriff — Thornton (colored). PAUL.

A Life Made Miserable by dispepsia is scarcely worth the living. A capricious appetite, heartburn, puzziling nervous symptoms, increased action of the heart after eating, sinking in the abdomen between meals, and flatulence after are among the successive indicia of this harassing complaint. Two things only are needful for its removal. A recort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and persistence in its use. These remedial measures being adopted, a cure is certain. Taken immediately before or after meals, this great atomachte promotes secretion of the gastric julies, the natural solvent of the food. The nervous and bilious symptoms consequent unon chronic indigestion disappear as the complaint gradually yields to the corrective and invigorating influence of the Bitters. Appetite returns, sleep becomes more refreshing, and, as a sequence, the body is efficiently nourished muscular power increases, and the mind grows sanguine. Use the Bitters for chills and fever and rheumatism. capricious appetite, heartburn, puzzling n
